REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The claims are essentially directed to a chewing gum composition comprising a base, wherein the base comprises high molecular weight polyisobutylene (PIB), and wherein the base is essentially free of non-silica filler. Pages 8-9 of the instant specification expressly defines high molecular weight PIB as ranging "from about 200,000 daltons to about 600,000 daltons", wherein the preferred MW is about 400,000. Page 8 of the specification defines the phrase "essentially free of non-silica filler" as having levels "of about 0% to about 5% by weight of the chewing gum base", wherein it is preferably free of non-silica filler. It is further noted that "the amount of high molecular weight polyisobutylene present in the inventive chewing gum base ranges from about 5% to about 15% by weight of the chewing gum base" (pg. 9, specification).

The prior art discloses the use of polyisobutylene within gum bases, predominantly in the "low molecular weight" form. US PAT 3,984,574 (Comollo) discloses the production of a chewing gum with a base comprising PIB in either high or low MW. However, the reference states that "the low molecular weight typically has a weight of from 6000 to 12,000, and the high molecular weight has a weight typically of from 40,000 to 120,000." Thus, the "high molecular weight" PIB range is well below that of the instantly-claimed invention. Again, the instant claims provide for a chewing gum base comprising a high molecular weight PIB, which is clearly defined in the specification as ranging "from about 200,000 daltons to about 600,000 daltons." Therefore, the claimed invention is distinguished from that of the prior art, and patentably distinct therefrom.

Further, there was no teaching or suggestion in the art for one of ordinary skill to utilize a PIB with a molecular weight higher than that taught by Comollo. In fact, the general state of the prior art asserted that the use of increased MW PIB's made the resultant chewing gum tough, more elastic and thus more difficult to chew, therefore teaching away from the instantly-claimed invention.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
